This is to let you DOJ folks know that as one of the general public I think your behavior towards microsoft is just shameful. The great american dream has absolutely no meaning anymore if you people keep this farce of a lawsuit going. Where in the world does it say a person can't realize their dream, become the richest person in the whole wide world and still be happy? What makes you people think that you are right by trying to tell this person he can't keep the secrets of his success SECRET? That he HAS to remake HIS company to suit someone else just because that other company wants to dig around in his company business. It's not fair, right or American. If this is the way you people treat success it's no wonder the majority of the third world hates our guts. It's no wonder the little guy (like me) can never get ahead. After all what do we have to look forward to?
